

Alpha body sentence about gauges placed along the bank.

The crew recorded water level, air temperature, and cloud cover.

A second line keeps the page from being only a header and a footer.

A third line gives the edge detector real body text to leave alone.

Unique tail 1 stays because this sentence is not repeated.

Closing observation 1 belongs only on this page.

Beta body sentence about thaw arriving earlier than the logbook expected.

The crew recorded water level, air temperature, and cloud cover.

A second line keeps the page from being only a header and a footer.

A third line gives the edge detector real body text to leave alone.

Unique tail 2 stays because this sentence is not repeated.

Closing observation 2 belongs only on this page.

Gamma body sentence about silt settling in the still water.

The crew recorded water level, air temperature, and cloud cover.

A second line keeps the page from being only a header and a footer.

A third line gives the edge detector real body text to leave alone.

Unique tail 3 stays because this sentence is not repeated.

Closing observation 3 belongs only on this page.

Delta body sentence about dusk closing the survey.

The crew recorded water level, air temperature, and cloud cover.

A second line keeps the page from being only a header and a footer.

A third line gives the edge detector real body text to leave alone.

Unique tail 4 stays because this sentence is not repeated.

Closing observation 4 belongs only on this page.